BIG DYNAMITE BOMB

Infernal Machine Is Found Among Baggage Belonging to Laborers.

Thomas Kell is the porter of the employment office of William Reiss of all nationalties go to procure work and the office supplies laborers to the aqueduct, to mines and railroads. Kell has brushed arms with the Black Manders and has been up against all kinds of characters.

Monday morning is a great period at the employment office. Saturday being pay day, generally, oblivion is seeight in the saloons of the neighborso that on Monday morning legions of men are looking for new jobs. No excoption was noted this morning. One ed of the office looked like the baggage depot of a railroad. It was piled with trunks, carpet bags and packages of all descriptions.

Hell wasn't in the best of humor as be wrestled with the baggage. He was & about until he came to a package wound up in an Italian newspaper. The its in the paper began slipping. and with an imprecation on the head of the owner, the porter took it over to a deck to rewrap it. When he spread out the paper on Mr. Reiss's desk, there were six sticks of dynamite, a piece of Case eighteen inches long and sixteen fulminating caps.

Reles notified the police and Detective

Cassidy of the Greenwich street police station, who is familiar with the Black Band and their methods, piled the stuff into a pall of water and carried it to the station. In the condition of the bustibles there was no danger of
